Title : Stop throwing plastic in our tourist spots.

CI means Curriculum Integration. Curriculum Integration (CI) is a method that enhances learning by interweaving various subjects, revealing their interconnectedness in the real world. It fosters a deeper understanding of concepts, such as ecosystem restoration, across different courses, making the learning experience more engaging and multifaceted. CI encourages creative problem-solving and innovative thinking by presenting topics in a holistic manner. Collaborative skills are honed through multidisciplinary projects, enriching the learning experience. The approach renders learning more meaningful as it illustrates the relevance of studied topics to each other and the broader world.

The theme of our mask, titled "stop throwing plastic in our tourist spot". It draws parallels between personal growth after adversity and societal improvement, akin to ecosystem restoration. The mask symbolically portrays one side, reflecting challenges like deforestation and pollution, while the other side embodies renewal with vibrant colors signifying regrowth and ecosystem revitalization. This duality serves as a reminder that even in challenging times, there is potential for improvement—a theme conveying hope and change.

The name of our theme is “Stop throwing plastic in our tourists spot”. That is included into our CI theme, ecosystem restoration. We often go to visit many tourist spots. But because of the plastic that we throw away, the tourist spot is a source of terrible pollution today. The dialects of these places are under threat today.

We wanted to show this message by our mask. Our masks showed sea sight on the right top and under the left side we wanted to show forest's belongings. And we tried to show the results of polluting and throwing wastages.

Our message through Max was that we should not throw plastic in tourist spots. Bangladesh is one of the most beautiful countries in the world. There are many beautiful tourist spots in our country. People from all over the world come to visit these spots everyday. A country with great potential in the tourism industry. But the tourism industry is facing a threat for us today. Biodiversity of these scenic spots is at the point of destruction today due to the plastic that we throw away. Plastic in the ocean is causing water pollution and destruction of marine ecosystems. We know that 80% of our country is hilly forest. Which is being damaged due to the plastic we throw away. If we are not aware then our potential industry sector and its beauty will be lost. That's why we chose this topic.

Layout : The blue color on the upper part of the mask represents the sea. Which is one of the tourist spots of Bangladesh. It explains how the ocean and its coastal areas are being polluted by the plastic we throw away Here we have used some plastic images through photoshop It is understood that the color of the blue water has changed to green polluted water due to the effect of this plastic The lower part of the mask is represented by the green color of the Bangladeshi hill forest. Here too I have added plastic via photoshop to indicate pollution. And as a result of this pollution our mountain diversity is facing destruction today. By Max we mean that our country is rich in natural beauty. May they not perish because of our work. As we both travel a lot, we came up with this plan after seeing the conditions there. This is how we want to make masks.

Planning and Installation: First of all, neither of the two people in our group can paint. In that case we ran into a bit of a problem. For this we have to thank one of our older brothers who helped us paint. We used acrylic colors and different sizes of brushes while coloring our masks. We didn't use anything except a mask. We have added some images through Photoshop. We were able to make the mask as per our plan. At first I was a little bored while making the mask. But when I finished the work, a kind of soul satisfaction worked. It was not known that messages can be sent to people so beautifully through masks. I want to do more work like this. The main strength of our group was group work and communication. We divided the work very well and kept in touch with each other despite the difficulties. As a result we don't have to face many problems. The place of fault was that we could not paint. If we want to do such work from then on, we must keep this in mind.

Role of individual members : Soon after grouping we divided the work nicely among ourselves. Mask painting, photography, edit, submission and mask making on my face is done by Thirtha. I (Sanim) did the work of buying the materials, deciding the name of the group, and writing the report. Due to our communication we did not have to face much problem.

Conclusion : This mask making journey was really amazing. We really enjoyed it together. Through this, the place of group work has become stronger. Also learned how to communicate and work with each other. It was truly amazing how a message could be presented so beautifully through a mask. The main aim was to convey and communicate a message through masks to the masses which I learned through this course. Really enjoying the journey of this course.
